RIVERS STATE THE TREASURE BASE OF THE NATION

Rivers State is a region in Nigeria, named for its abundant rivers, has a history rooted in colonial influence, political shifts, and the emergence of a distinct cultural identity. It was in the three-region structure of 1954 and was officially created from the then Eastern Region of Nigeria by Decree No. 19 of 1967 and It then became one of the twelve states created in 1967. It was once referred to as Oil Rivers Protectorate, later becoming part of the Niger Coast Protectorate and then the colony of Southern Nigeria. The earliest settlements in Rivers State were the kingdoms of Bonny, Opobo and Kalabari. Their proximity to the coast and oil palm-rich hinterland made them important and they thrived on the trade between the Europeans and inland n a t i v e s . Rivers State is home to a variety of ethnic groups, the most predominant of which are the Ijaw, Ikwere, Kalabari, Ndoni and Okrika. There are 23 L.G.A in the state, and 30 indigenous languages across the 23 L.G.A, the major ones being Igbo and Ikwere. 80% of the population are Christians but traditional religion and Islam are also practised here. Rivers State has tropical rainforests as well as mangrove and saltwater swamps. The overwhelming majority of the people in the state are involved in two primary activities: farming and fishing. Major cash crops in the state include oil palm, rubber, raffia palm and jute, while the state's main minerals are petroleum and natural gas. The major industries in Rivers State are petroleum and petrochemical related industries. The state has two major refineries, two major seaports, an airport and various i n d u s t r i a l e s t a t e s . The tertiary institutions in the state are University of Port Harcourt, Choba; Federal College of Education (Technical), Omoku; Federal Polytechnic, Omoku; Rivers State Polytechnic; Bori; Rivers State University, Nkpolu Oroworuku; Ignatius Ajulu University of Education, Rumuolumeni; School of Health Technology, Port Harcourt; School of Nursing and Midwifery, Rumueme; and Elechi Amadi Polytechnic, Port Harcourt. The city of Port Harcourt was named after Lewis Vernon Harcourt in 1913 by Lord Frederick Lugard. It was o r i g i n a l l y k n o w n a s I g u o c h a .
